

Werner Swanepoel

Werner Swanepoel has five years auditing and financial risk analysis experience in addition to completing his SAICA training contract at PricewaterhouseCoopers in 2010, where he also formed part of the national recruitment division. He qualified as a Chartered Accountant during his term as article clerk at PricewaterhouseCoopers.

He audited companies in different sectors of the South African economy and enjoyed exposure to a vast array of financial environments whilst specialising in the healthcare and automotive industry, with focus on sustainable risk management and internal control design through the implementation of information processing systems. After completing his articles, he incorporated Medical Practice Consulting (Pty) Ltd, a specialist risk management firm in the South African healthcare industry, where he currently fills the position of Managing Director. Under his leadership Medical Practice Consulting currently represents the innovation hub of the South African healthcare industry by providing 14, 500 healthcare professionals with access to accredited training content and CPD compliance risk management systems. He also acted in various part time academic positions at Forbes Lever Baker, The Auditor General of South Africa (AGSA) and Edge Business School since the incorporation of Medical Practice Consulting where he lectured students from second year to CTA Level 2 in auditing on the UNISA syllabus. Aside from auditing and risk management, Werner, before starting on his SAICA training contract, also acted in positions in the retail and entertainment sectors, where he developed skills in public speaking and client facilitation.
